

INSIST BULLET WAS AIMED AT MRS. BAILEY

Freeport Officials to Use Chart to Show Doctor Was Not Target.

NEGRO MAID FEARS TO RETURN HOME

Kept in Hiding, She Is Expected To Be Star Witness for State.

MRS. CARMAN TO TALK

Smith Agrees to Let Her Tell Unsworn Story to Grand Jury This Week.

Freeport, Long Island, July 12.—The shot fired through the office window of Dr. Carman on the night of June 30 reached its intended mark when it struck and killed Mrs. Lulu Bailey, of Hempstead, according to the contentions of the prosecution. This is what District Attorney Lewis J. Smith expects to prove to the satisfaction of the grand jury when it convenes in Mineola Tuesday morning.

The chart which the District Attorney has had prepared was completed to-day. It proves, as The Tribune has noted exclusively, that the person who fired that shot must have been at least five feet seven inches in height. Also, in the opinion of Mr. Smith, it furnishes conclusive evidence that the bullet was intended for Mrs. Bailey, and not for Dr. Carman, as the latter has so persistently asserted.

With the chart as a guide, Mr. Smith took the part of the person standing at the window, and placing Dr. Carman where the physician said he was standing that Tuesday night, demonstrated to him, the District Attorney said, that even if he had remained where he was standing, instead of diving under his operating chair, as he testified, the bullet could only have grazed his left shoulder, inflicting at worst a slight flesh wound.

Had Mrs. Bailey stood without moving the bullet would have struck her in the middle of the back. She turned with the sound of breaking glass of the window just in time to receive the bullet in her shoulder. The authorities are now certain upon this point.

Will Submit Chart.

The chart which furnishes the District Attorney with his evidence has been carefully prepared under the direction of expert engineers and surveyors. It will be used before the grand jury, and is expected to play an important part, not only before that body, but also at the trial, as the prosecution is confident that the jury will return an indictment against Mrs. Carman.

Celia Coleman, the Carman maid, whose departure from Freeport has caused the defense much trouble and upon which Mrs. Carman's counsel and detectives have based charges of kidnapping and "framing up," will not tell the grand jury the story she told at the inquest. That is now certain. Celia is expected to prove one of the state's strongest witnesses, instead of appearing in that role for Mrs. Carman.

District Attorney Smith, after an hour's persistent questioning, said at his home in Hempstead this afternoon that Celia might tell an amplified story. The District Attorney, it is known on the best of authority, could have gone much further had he cared. Not only will Celia's story be amplified, but it will be amplified on points most vital to the prosecution.

The fact developed late this evening that the negro maid was unwilling, if not afraid, to return to Freeport after she had been taken to Mineola Thursday in response to a subpoena to go before the grand jury. When it turned out that the jury would adjourn with-

RETURNS AS FROM GRAVE

Luke Dillon, Believed Dead 14 Years, Rejoins Family.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Philadelphia, July 12.—Luke Dillon, the Irish patriot, who had been dead for many of his friends and his own children for fourteen years, to-day returned to his family, where he had been sentenced, under another name, to life imprisonment, on the charge of attempting to dynamite the Welland Canal.

Dillon occupied a responsible position in a bank here until 1900, when he disappeared. Investigation showed his bones in perfect shape and all his acquaintances were at a complete loss to account for his absence until Mrs. Dillon announced his death.

His four children were raised to maturity in the belief that their father was dead, and it was only yesterday that they learned he was alive and free. Today the father, aged and bent, clasped in his arms the grown-up sons and daughter he left as children.

GIBBONS DUE HERE TO-DAY

Baltimore Friends Will Meet Cardinal at the Dock.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Baltimore, July 12.—Cardinal Gibbons is returning from Europe on the steamship Berlin, which will dock to-morrow at New York. The Rev. Dr. W. A. Fletcher, rector of the Cathedral; the Cardinal's secretary and several priests in Baltimore have gone to New York to greet the Cardinal and escort him home.

It had been proposed to have a procession of the Catholic societies and a big public church demonstration here in honor of the Cardinal's homecoming, but he requested that all such ceremonies be postponed until the convention here of the National Federation of Catholic Clubs next October.

BATH COST HER CLOTHES

Girl, in Swimming Costume, Walked to Police Station.

Miss Rose Lipstein, nineteen years old, living at 949 Av. St. John, The Bronx, walked into the Westchester police station last night about 8 o'clock attired in a bathing costume. She said she had been to a party and had been bathing in the afternoon.

Miss Lipstein spent most of the afternoon swimming at Pelham Bay Park. When she left the water she found her locker forced open and started to take out her bathing suit. She found the police station, a distance of at least two miles.

After reporting her loss to the police she completed her journey home in a taxi.

FIND DROWNED GIRL

Bathers Discover Body of Miss Reeve in Surf.

The body of Miss Grace V. Reeve, of Richmond Hill, who, with two other members of a Sunday school excursion party at Long Beach last Thursday, lost her life while bathing in the surf, was recovered yesterday by bathers.

The bathing party called the attention of Charles B. Dietrich, a life guard, to the body, and it was taken to Rockaway Hospital morgue and later identified by the victim's father.

The bodies of Catherine Reacraft and Norman Beach, the other members of the Sunday school party who were drowned last Friday while bathing in the surf, were recovered yesterday off Rockaway Point.

WOMAN BURNED BY WIRE SAVING BOYS

She Frees Lads from Torture After They Grasp Live Electric Line.

Dutess Junction, N. Y., July 12.—In saving the lives of two nine-year-old boys stuck to a live electric wire, a woman was herself seriously shocked and burned to-day. The accident occurred three miles north of this village.

JUSTICE LURTON DIES SUDDENLY

Associate Member of U. S. Supreme Court Victim of Heart Disease.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Atlantic City, July 12.—Horace Lorton, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, died here this morning at 5 o'clock. With him at the end were his wife and his son, Horace Lorton, Jr. The cause of death was heart disease, from which Justice Lorton had been suffering for some years.

TAFT OR McREYNOLDS MAY SUCCEED HIM

Democratic Claim on Place Will Weigh Heavily with Wilson, Friends Say.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Atlantic City, July 12.—Horace Lorton, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, died here this morning at 5 o'clock. With him at the end were his wife and his son, Horace Lorton, Jr. The cause of death was heart disease, from which Justice Lorton had been suffering for some years.

He came to this resort ten days ago, hoping a rest would prove beneficial, and had been under the care of Dr. Walter Reynolds, of this city. Several days ago Mr. Lorton's condition took a turn for the worse, and Dr. Sterling Russell, of Washington, the family physician, was sent for. For a time he seemed to improve, but last night Justice Lorton had a serious sinking spell from which he failed to rally. He was seventy years old.

Arrangements have been made to take the body to Washington to-morrow on a special car, starting from here at 2:20 p. m. Burial will be at Clarksville, Tenn., on Wednesday. Mrs. Horace Vanderventer, of Knoxville, Tenn., the daughter of Justice Lorton, arrived here this afternoon, as did Harry D. Jacobs, his secretary.

UNIONISTS HOLD UP POLICE; SEIZE ARMS

Ulster Volunteers Board Train and Carry Off Munitions of War.

(By Cable to The Tribune.) London, July 13.—One hundred Ulster Volunteers have just brought off a coup calculated to make the British government look foolish. At the point of the revolver they recaptured a consignment of 200 Mauser rifles and 10,000 rounds of ammunition. A van was seized by the customs authorities in Londonderry a few days ago containing the arms in question. By means of an excellent secret service the Ulster Volunteers secured information of the intention of the authorities to convey the captured arms to Dublin by a train leaving Londonderry at 7:05 a. m. on Saturday, and an audacious plan was formed to board the train and win back the arms.

Directly the train entered the Enniskillen station 100 Volunteers rushed the platform and surrounded the goods van with a ring of revolvers. The ten policemen guarding the government's capture could do nothing against such a number of Volunteers and stood looking helplessly on while the cases of arms and ammunition were swiftly removed. Automobiles waiting outside the station.

The whole thing was done so swiftly that before the police could recover from their astonishment the arms and ammunition were being conveyed to the destination originally intended for them, the levelled revolvers disappeared and the 100 Volunteers marched rapidly away.

The discomfited guard of policemen could only proceed to Dublin and report the coup of the Ulstermen to the authorities at Dublin Castle.

The anniversary of the battle of the Boyne will be celebrated throughout Ulster to-day. The principal event will be a great demonstration at Drumkeigh, five miles south of Belfast, at which Sir Edward Carson will speak. Yesterday, which was the actual anniversary, was observed by religious demonstrations, and passed off quietly in Ireland.

In Scotland, near Glasgow, some lively scenes occurred at an Orange demonstration, and four men were arrested. Extra police have been drafted into the district. Armed police and troops have also been sent into the northeastern counties of Ireland from Drogheda.

WALDORF ASTOR TO SELL NEWSPAPERS

"The Pall Mall Gazette" and "The Observer" May Pass to Other Hands.

London, July 13.—"The Standard" is informed on good authority that negotiations are pending for the sale of the Astor newspapers, "The Pall Mall Gazette" and "The Observer."

A syndicate, composed of Midland business men and a leading member of the Unionist party, is engaged in considering the conditions and the price. Should the sale take place both papers will remain Unionist.

"The Pall Mall Gazette" founded in 1865, was acquired by William Waldorf Astor in 1892. "The Observer," founded in 1791, was bought from Lord Northcliffe two or three years ago.

WOMAN HURLS RUBBER BALL INTO QUEEN MARY'S LAP

Label on Missile Inscribed with Words "Stop Forcible Feeding"—Her Majesty Smilingly Brushes It Aside—Another Bomb Found in Church.

(By Cable to The Tribune.) London, July 13.—When the King and Queen were driving to St. Giles Cathedral yesterday at Dundee a suffragette broke through the spectators, flung the police and threw into the royal carriage a rubber ball to which was attached a label inscribed with the words, "Stop Forcible Feeding."

The ball fell upon the Queen's lap and she brushed it aside smilingly. Both the King and the Queen appeared amused at the incident. Hooted and threatened by the crowd, the woman was taken to the police station, and there detained until the return procession had passed.

Mr. Powell's hands were burned, but the lady fared much worse. Their hands, arms and feet were scorched and blistered.

150,000 HELD AT CONEY ISLAND

Blow-Out of Transformer in Power House Stops Cars for Hours.

THROUGHS RUSH TO BEACH TO SLEEP

Many Women with Babies in Throng Forced to Remain at Resort.

More than 150,000 people, many of them mothers with babies, were marooned at Coney Island for hours this morning. The blowing out of a transformer put the entire train and trolley service out of commission.

Wild scenes occurred at the stations when the lights went out and the officials shouted through the darkness that no trains could run. The last boats had gone, and from 10:30 o'clock till after 1 a. m. not a wheel turned on train or trolley. The only way was by automobile, and all that were available were soon snapped up at $15 for the trip. Full service was not restored until after 3 o'clock.

Thousands tried to the beach and prepared to spend the night on the sands as best they could. There was nowhere else to stay, for the "lid" is on the island and every place has to close at 1 a. m. Luna had closed when it was discovered that the breakdown of the transit system was complete.

The gates were thrown open again, that women with children might have somewhere to sit.

Blue Flames Shoot Up

The transformer that caused the trouble was in the Brooklyn Rapid Transit sub-power station at Sheepshead Bay Road and Van Sicken street. The blow-out of the apparatus was accompanied by a remarkable pyrotechnic display. Great blue flames erupted the whole building. A fire alarm was sent in, but the engines could not be used because the water would conduct the electric current and imperil the firemen. Two men were under the building and it was understood that they managed to escape. The fire was soon extinguished with sand.

At both the railway stations trains were packed full of stranded women and children. Suddenly the lights went out and the trainmen found the power was off. It was some time before they were aware of the seriousness of the breakdown, and no announcement was made until long after three o'clock.

The passengers who were in the unlighted cars remained there in the dark, clamoring for the trains to start. The women who were in the train to travel to the beach fought to get to the front, not yet knowing there were no trains. Several fights broke out among men, and at each station there were near-riots.

Police Captain Samuel McElroy, of the Coney Island station, had to telephone to Bath Beach and Sheepshead Bay for help, and policemen were rushed over in patrol wagons.

Crowds Grow Greater

Their arrival added to the excitement for the beach, and bigger crowds were seen. More than one hundred policemen were at the West End depot trying to keep some semblance of order. As many more were needed at the Coney depot.

Surf avers presented an extraordinary scene. Half the great throng when the truth was learned became hysterical and tried to make the most of the situation. The other half were crying to get home. Hundreds of women could be seen weeping. They and their children were tired out, and they wandered up and down the avenue looking in vain for help.

GOES DOWN WITH HIS SHIP

Captain and Two Lost as Middlesex Sinks Schooner.

Boston, July 12.—Captain John H. Thomas and two seamen of the five-masted schooner George P. Hudson lost their lives in a collision between the schooner and the coastwise steamer Middlesex in a fog off Cape Cod Saturday night. The schooner, which was coal laden, bound for Philadelphia, was in a collision with the steamer, which was carrying mail, and sank within five minutes after the collision.

The Middlesex, bound from Boston to Norfolk, in ballast, put back into port after the collision. The schooner, which was carrying mail, was found floating in the water. A boatload of seamen immediately swung away from the Hudson, which was filling with water, and some of the crew called back. "Go ahead, never mind me," Captain Thomas called back. He was clinging to the deck rail as the schooner went down. His body was not recovered.

BIG CARP GIVES BOY RUNAWAY RIDE

Willie Pitney Says "Father Told Me To Be a Sticker," and Holds On.

Netcong, N. J., July 12.—A fat, nineteen-pound carp made off with nine-year-old William C. Pitney, Jr., on Lake Musconetcong this morning. There was wild excitement as the boy's father and ten other men, in as many boats, gave chase.

All of the Pitney family, of Newark, now camping here, were preparing to go fishing, when Willie, ready, fit, got into the boat and threw his line into the water. A moment later the boat sped across the lake, with the lad screaming and hanging to his line.

Six of the pursuing boats, after a chase first one way and then another, cornered the Pitney boat and helped the boy kill his catch. "Father told me to be a sticker," said Willie, when his frightened mother asked why he had not obeyed the shouts to him to let go.

CARRANZA REJECTS CARBAJAL

Neither Carabajal nor any one else selected by Huerta to succeed him as head of the Mexican government will be acceptable to Carranza, leader of the Constitutionalists, according to a message received from him by The Tribune last night.

THE TRIBUNE'S MESSAGE.

Carranza's message was in reply to the following request sent to him by The Tribune:

"General Carranza, Saltillo, Mexico.

"Will Francisco Carabajal be acceptable to the Carranzistas as Provisional President?"

GENERAL CARRANZA'S MESSAGE.

Saltillo, Coah., Mex., July 12.—Su atento mensaje ayer—Constitucionalistas no hemos reconocido Huerta como presidente Mejico ni reconocieramos quien lo sustituya en el mando. El Primer Jefe del E. C. V. CARRANZA.

THE TRANSLATION.

Saltillo, Coahuila, Mex., July 12.—In reply to your esteemed message of yesterday, we, the Constitutionalists, have not recognized Huerta, nor will we recognize whomever he may substitute in authority.

First Chief of the Constitutionalist Army.

HINTS AT REPUBLIC FOR BLACKWELL'S

Dr. Davis Cheered as She Talks Honor System to Convicts.

A convict republic on Blackwell's Island and under the honor system was hinted at by Miss Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction, in a talk to the prisoners in the penitentiary yesterday.

This possibility and the fact that the prison stripes are to be replaced on the good prisoners by a garb of olive drab with no jail insignia were told to three hundred or more prisoners who attended the Protestant service yesterday afternoon.

The convicts cheered her announcement.

Miss Davis told them that she had determined to abolish the uniforms now used in the prison. In the near future these will be worn only by convicts who have misbehaved, and will be known as a mark of dishonor.

Instead of the barred uniforms the prisoners will wear stripes of drab. Miss Davis said that this honor system was working excellently at the Boys' Reformatory at Southampton, in Orange County, and also she believed it would work on Blackwell's Island if the prisoners themselves took interest enough to see that it was not abused.

She caused laughter when she told the prisoners that she had tried to establish self-government at the Bedford Reformatory when she was head of that institution. She had put the proposition to a vote of the inmates, she said, and was surprised to find that a majority of the girls did not want self-government, for the reason that the girls did not believe that women should be ruled by women.

Aid for Prisoners.

If the honor system is adopted on Blackwell's Island and self-government is put into effect it will mean many additional privileges for the prisoners. The convicts themselves will be charged with the duty of seeing that these privileges are not abused.

Miss Davis already has ordered the new uniforms for the convicts, and when the first batch arrives they will be given to fifteen men who are now on the honor roll. They will be used as an incentive to the other convicts to behave themselves, and gradually will be distributed until only the rules convicts who refuse to obey the rules will have the present uniforms with the bars on them.

Neither Miss Davis nor Warden Hayes likes the physical condition of the prisoners.

"As soon as I get the money," she said, "I'm going to change conditions. I want to make life decent and bearable for you. But we must be patient."

Plans for Improvement.

"I've been advocating the needs of this department since I've been in charge, but to make these improvements I've got to get money from the Board of Estimate. They are nice gentlemen who believe, and rightly, too, in a low tax."

About $4,000,000 is needed to make the improvements desired.

While Miss Davis was speaking Dr. C. E. Baxter, after a few weeks ago a physician on the island, sat in a seat of honor in the front row. He was recently convicted of selling morphine to the prisoners and was sentenced to the penitentiary. His imprisonment was shared and he wore an old head was shaved and a "tick" shirt.

Miss Davis spent the entire day on Blackwell's Island, and the evening was so satisfactory that conditions were so satisfactory that she believed that the insurrection was over, and Warden Hayes agreed with her. The keepers, however, were not so optimistic.

She feared another outbreak when it became known that Miss Davis had left the island. She planned to return again to-morrow.

She attended 9 o'clock mass in the morning, and after Father Neville had blessed her she gave the three hundred convicts assembled a heart-to-heart talk, in which she urged them to co-operate with her in keeping order.

"No Church in the Christian world," she said, "so strongly teaches obedience to lawful authority as you men have in conducting of this institution in a proper manner."

The Protestant services were held in the Episcopal chapel at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. H. Watkins presided, and the Rev. Philip Schuyler, canon of St. Luke's Cathedral, Portland, Me., assisted.

The entire prison population of 1,405, with the exception of the 100 believed to be ringleaders in the recent insurrection, sat down to supper last night.

The turbulent leaders are still on a diet.

RUIZ DEPARTS, SAYING HUERTA MAY QUIT TO-DAY

Presidency To Be Handed to Carabajal by End of Week at Least.

PICKED FOR PLACE AT NIAGARA FALLS

Name Suggested by U. S. Delegates, Ex-Foreign Secretary Asserts.

DICTATOR SEES FINISH

Goes to Save Capital from Sack by Rebels—Thinks Fighting Will Stop.

Vera Cruz, July 12.—To save his country from the horrors of civil war and his capital from capture, and perhaps sack by a victorious army, General Huerta intends to resign the Provisional Presidency and leave Mexico. This statement was made to-day by Roberto Esteva Ruiz, former Mexican Secretary of Foreign Affairs, who reached Vera Cruz from Mexico City on his way to Europe. Huerta, he said, would surrender the government to Francisco Carabajal, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs, who, in turn, would step aside when the time came for some other Provisional President wholly acceptable to the Constitutionalists. Just when the change will come Esteva Ruiz said he did not know.

"The President did not make me his confidant," he said; "nor did I have much time to talk with him after it was determined that I should leave the Cabinet."

He was convinced, however, that Huerta would lay down his power this week, and it would not surprise him, he said, if his resignation were announced to-morrow.

Carabajal Picked at Niagara.

Carabajal, he added, was suggested as Provisional President by the American delegation at the Niagara Falls mediation conference and agreed to by Huerta's delegates and the South American mediators, while the Constitutionalists delegates indirectly had conveyed the idea that he would be acceptable to Carranza.

"That is," explained Ruiz, "Carabajal would be a more acceptable Provisional President than the real Provisional President to be named later."

When the suggestion was first made Villa had not indicated his willingness to accept Carabajal, Esteva Ruiz went on, and he doubted Villa's willingness to accept him now. As for Zapata, he would recognize any Provisional Presidency until demands for the redistribution of land had been complied with and he intimated that objections to such a solution of Mexico's problem might come from certain parts of the northern states.

Unless something occurs to disarrange the plan, Esteva Ruiz said, the army, joined by mad mobs from the slums of the city.

Carhajal Names Cabinet.

He expected that Blauquet would leave Mexico City when Huerta fled, but not before. Enrique Gorostieta, Minister of Justice, had offered his resignation, he had heard, but he was not sure that the report was true. He assumed, however, that Gorostieta would resign and all the old Cabinet as well.

The new members of the Cabinet lately appointed, he went on, were supposed to be those chosen by Carabajal, with the idea that they were men the Constitutionalists would not object to, so seriously, at least, as to interfere with the preliminary work Carabajal had undertaken of finding some one to take his place as President ad interim.

Like Adolfo de la Lanza, the Mexican Minister of Finance, who arrived here yesterday, also on his way to Europe, he chose the Vera Cruz route, he said, because he was still in connection with the government. He had been named, he said, special ambassador to Argentina, Brazil and Chile to convey to those countries the thanks of the Mexican Republic for their efforts toward mediation. With his family he will sail from Vera Cruz on the steamer Alfonso XIII for Spain, and from that country, he said, he would go on his mission to South America.

He did not explain why he had chosen a journey from Mexico City to the coast through the American line, rather than to Puerto Mexico, except to say that the Vera Cruz route was shorter and offered a better opportunity to catch his boat.

Huerta May Go Same Way.

De la Lanza said to-day that the reason he chose the Vera Cruz route was the insistence of Huerta, who told him that by going through the American lines openly and frankly he would show the world the Vera Cruz agreement was not a farce so far as Huerta and the United States were concerned and that relations between the two countries were again friendly. This knowledge has again risen to the suggestion that Huerta himself, once he decides to leave his capital, also may pass through General Funston's lines and

EARNED HER LIVING DRESSED AS MAN

New York Woman Arouses Suspicion in Philadelphia and Arrested Secret.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Philadelphia, July 12.—Disguising herself as a man to earn enough money to support herself, a woman giving the name of Mabel Gray and saying she lived at 200 East 12th st., New York, was arrested to-night in the fashionable Chestnut Hill section. She is being held pending investigations. Her arrest came through the keen vision of a detective.

"My mother and father died in New York when I was twelve years old," said the prisoner, "and I was hung into the world to earn my living. When dressed as one of my sex, however, I found it extremely hard to earn a decent living. Store after store in which I was employed paid girls insufficient wages, and I was determined to better myself."

"I decided to act as a man, dress like a man and work like a man. I put this plan into effect several years ago, and because of my impersonation have been able to earn wages that I could never have received if I had stuck to the garb of my real sex."
